

The Nürnberg Krupp Trial Papers of Judge Hu C. Anderson (1890-1953)

Vanderbilt University
Alyne Queener Massey Law Library

Biographical Sketch

Hu Carmack Anderson was born on May 19, 1890, in Jackson, Tennessee, to Hugh Crump Anderson (1851-1915) and Emma Burdette Anderson (1863-1892). His father had an illustrious career as lawyer, bank president, Tennessee Representative, Tennessee Senator, Speaker of the Senate, and, for many years, Jackson's mayor. Anderson grew up with four siblings in Jackson, where he enjoyed playing catcher for impromptu baseball games with friends. He later studied law at Cumberland University, graduating in 1915.

In 1918 Anderson married Virginia Ione Ray. The couple had two daughters, Theresa and Mary Jane, and a son who did not survive infancy. Anderson served in World War I as a private in the 324th Field Signal Battalion. Before and after the war he worked in Jackson as assistant attorney general, attorney general, and prosecuting attorney. During the first term of the 67th Tennessee General Assembly in 1931, Anderson also served as a state senator and chairman of the Senate Finance, Ways and Means Committee. In 1933 the governor appointed him a judge for the Madison County Court of Appeals, a position Anderson held for the rest of his life. He became its presiding judge in 1942.

During and after World War II, Anderson actively mentored junior lawyers, participated in civic clubs, and made speeches in Madison County. Though respected by colleagues for his impartiality inside the courtroom, outside Anderson expressed strong opinions about political issues. He served as a delegate in three Democratic National Conventions. In his free time, Anderson enjoyed playing golf, fishing, and spending time with family and friends. He attended St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Jackson with his family.

In November 1947, General Lucius Clay, U.S. Military Governor for Germany, designated Anderson presiding judge of Nürnberg Military Tribunal III, an appointment President Truman affirmed by executive order the following month. In the final of three Nürnberg "industrialist" cases, the U.S.A., through its Counsel for War Crimes, indicted Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach and eleven other key officials of the Krupp firm on four counts: 1.) crimes against peace; 2.) plunder and spoliation; 3.) deportation, exploitation, and abuse of slave labor; and 4.) common plan or conspiracy to commit crimes against peace. The U.S. prosecution team filed the indictment on August 16, 1947; Anderson, with fellow judges Edward James Daly and William John Wilkins, delivered the judgment and sentencing on July 31, 1948.

The Krupp trial presented Anderson with professional and personal challenges. He expressed frustration about inadequate library facilities and came to depend on colleagues and publishers in the U.S. to supply his legal research materials. Anderson was equally frustrated by bureaucratic legal procedures adopted by the U.S. Military Government in Germany that obligated the court to follow Continental practices. He complained about an inordinate amount of paperwork. Moreover, the trial was physically and mentally taxing, as his personal letters attest. After daily sessions he was exhausted. He had a stomach ulcer that flared up during the trial. Anderson longed to come home to Tennessee; he told one friend back home that he had seen his balance of the world. He wanted to serve the rest of his career as a judge in Tennessee, which he did. At his Jackson-Madison County Bar Association Memorial service less than five years later,

Anderson's colleague and close friend Bill Moss shared his wife's comment: "You know, we lost Hu Anderson at Nuremberg. He has never been the same since."

The Vanderbilt chapter of the Order of the Coif inducted Anderson as an honorary member in 1952 in recognition of his outstanding service in Tennessee and Germany. He died the following year, on May 7, 1953, two days after a tragic fall down an elevator shaft at the Madison County Courthouse.

Scope and Content Note

Judge Hu C. Anderson's Krupp Trial papers date from November 1947 to April 1949. Stored in fifty archival boxes, they comprise 16.7 linear feet. The collection represents Judge Anderson's experience as Presiding Judge of subsequent Nürnberg Trial 10, formally known as Military Tribunal III: the United States of America vs. Alfried Felix Alwyn Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, et al. Comprehensive in nature, the Krupp Trial materials include the daily transcript of proceedings in the courtroom and before the Commissioner, prosecution and defense documents and briefs, judgment and sentencing, and Judge Anderson's legal research. Additional materials include the judge's notes about the trial, his personal correspondence, and legal documents from other Nürnberg trials.

Most legal materials in the collection are textual; they contain, for example, over one thousand six hundred affidavits. Prosecution and defense exhibits also include charts, maps, several photographs, and other graphic images. Although stored in acid-free folders, the documents have begun to deteriorate. The 1940s' pages are soft and yellowing. They are prone to tears and many show crumbling around the edges. The fading ink occasionally makes reading difficult. Duplicate pages, incorrect, and penciled-in page numbers sometimes appear. And while the collection is thorough, certain materials are missing, notably prosecution document books 17-26 and defense document books Eberhardt I, Krupp II-III, Mueller II and Pfirsch II. Prosecution Document Books 28-30 and 45-50 do not appear in the collection because they were never assembled, and Krupp Document Book IV and Pfirsch Document Books III-V were cancelled by defense counsel while they were being processed.
